The last time Caitlin Jemma performed in Moab, her busy tour schedule afforded her no extra time to enjoy the area's red rock landscapes. The view from the stage inside of Eddie McStiff's Restaurant and Bar was about all she saw during her 2014 visit, she said. She knew that next time she would make time to explore.

Well, "next time" is around the corner for the Oregon-based singer/songwriter, who is coming through Moab on her way to competing in the upcoming Telluride Bluegrass Festival.

Caitlin Jemma and the Goodness will be performing on Tuesday, June 13 at the home of Gigi Love, at 2112 Buena Vista Drive. Love, a local Americana and folk singer/songwriter, will be opening for the Goodness shortly after the doors open at 7:30 p.m.

"It's a community gathering that I am opening my home to so that the musicians can get to actually meet our community," says Love. "There is a patio and grass... bring your own food and snacks and drinks and blankets or chairs. It starts promptly at 8 p.m."
